28th March.

The last two Shanghai mails have brought us most alarming news from Peking. One paper uforms us that the Government has requested Ch'ung How to commit suicide; another affirms that he has been kind enough to comply with the petition, while a third tells us of a formidable rising among the Bannermen of the Capital, the consequences of which are likely to be of a most serious nature as regards the foreign community. All this has thrown us into a pitiable state of trapidation, and we are anxiously awaiting further advices from Shanghai to know whether we have been exterminated or not in The simple fact is that there is not and never has been the slightest foundation for any one o these reports. What earthly consideration in connection with Chang How should ever prompt the Bannermen to rise is to most people an in soluble conundrum. As to Ch'ung How himself. he is in precisely the same position as when last you heard. He is contenting himself with apartments in the Hing Pu of more modest dimensions than he could have if he liked, probably for politic reasons. The way in which he looks at his position as I gather from a man who sees him nearly every day, is very much as follows:- "It the Marquis succeeds in his mission to St. Petersburg, my head will be in imminent danger, for the faultiness of the arrangement I made will then be placed in a still more glaring light than now. Peace was thus of this task. Since the first moon of the present years rumours have been rife, and the undertakings that the memo lalist has in hand have almost been brought to nought. This is not the case with sait trade alone, and in spite of all his efforts, he cannot attend to everything; while he is met by such stelld apathy on the Peking Gasette of the 19th March the following part of his officers that the progress of public business is much impeded. In spite, therefore, of the powers with which the memorialist is entrusted by the Court, and the confidence reposed in him, he "pricks his fingers" at every turn, and his strength and mental energies are well-nigh exhausted. As an illustration of the difficulties to which he is exposed, he will quote a case. Brigandage used to be rife in the Ch'eng-tu prefecture, and on his arrival in Sze-chuen he set to work to deal with it, re-organising the tithing system, and attacking the evil with energy. The result was that during the winter of 1877.1878.

brigandage was nearly extinguished. The torritorial authorities, however, now report that though brigandage does not exist to the extent that it formerly did, the country is not so quiet as it was two years previously. This, and similar enterprises that had at one time been carried to a partially successful issue, have gradually lost ground in consequence of an impression that the rough edges of memorialist's energy have been worn down by lapse of time, and that he is no longer to be feared. Under these conditions there is much reason to predict the failure of any new enterprises that he may undertako. In ancient days, when a high authority was on bad terms with the Censorate, he used to send in his resignation. The memorialist, however, will not show himsolf so ungrateful for His Majosty's bonnty as to take such a step as this Neither will he be deterred from what [he thinks it right] to do from a fear of adverse criticism. He will continue to apply his mind to the end to the performance of his duty, for all the pitfalls that are laid for him cannot be in every instance designed with a view to the interests of the country, and he will trust to His Majesty to devise some indirect means for the prevention of attacks from [interested] parties or factions.

Captain Mourier spoke in the highest terms of the patent apparatus for taking soundings invented by Sir William Thomson, and considered that no ship ought to proceed to sea without it. The investigations of the east coast of Greenland were greatly hampered by constant logs. The bottom of the ice-cold Polar water was invariably soft mud. The depth of the gen decreased greatly at about the 67th degree of north latitude, and veried between 150 and 200 fathoms, and here immense isobergs were discovered one of which was computed to be about 180. feet above the water, with a circumference of about 1:100 feet. The inland mountain called Ingolf's Field was estimated to be 5.532 feet above the level of the sea. Steaming further to the east, away from the coast, the temperature of the deeper water increased gradually, while that of Burface water rose very suddenly; and in one case rose from 1 deg. to 7 deg. (Celsius) in the course of a single hour, while over a distance of five miles the depth increased from 160 fathoms to 505 fathoms, and later, in the Gulf Stream, the depth increased to 1,005 fathoms, with warm water to the bottom. The results of the expedition may be thus summarized .- The mapping out the hitherto unknown parts of the east coast of Greenland; the discovery of an immense bank stretching out from the north west coast of Iceland, probably close to the coast of Greenland, as the Polar Stream, after having reached this bank, FULLARTON HENDERSON, Esq., Agent. was found to flow on, with comparatively warm water at the bottom. This bank renders the same service in the Arctic regions as the bank which in the North sea stratches across from Iceland to the parts of the World. Shetland Islands and the Farce Islands, that is to say, it protects the basin of the Atlantic from the cold Polar streams. Finally, Captain Mourier, doubted the possibility of landing on the sust coast of Greenland from the sea, on account of the immense masses of floating icebergs.

What is the difference between an Exchange broker and a rustic trying a galvanic battery? -Why, one has stocks and shares, and the other has shocks and stares. A new instrument has been invented called the

It was just after he had safely stowed away in his pocket-book a certificate for 1,000 shares of an active and promising stock, with the expectation of a speedy rise and a "quick turn," that old Mr. Moneybags turned to his clerk with "Never speculate, young man. Invest, but never speculate."-Boston Transcript.

THE LONDON ASSURANCE. IN MGLISH AND CHINESE WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

> For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given. the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and lispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :-

Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the atudent of this difficult language absolutely reunires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples is work contains more than five times as WISS LLOYD TRANSPORT INSUR. many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion.

It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages. A Large REDUCTION in PRICE is made / THE A! American Ship to Purchasers of SIX or more Copies.
